

The citizenship education on four competence areas:

■ Interacting effectively and constructively with others

■ Thinking critically

■ Acting in a socially responsible manner

■ Acting democratically

The project aims to introduce the dialectical method in school education as a key feature that promotes the active participation of students in a democratic society with the support of theatre techniques.

The dialectical method not only promotes students critical thinking, but it also helps them make the connection between their everyday life and fundamental concepts and notions such as humanism, justice, freedom, etc.

This has never been more important in a world where social media presents young people with a mass of (mis-)information and ethical dilemmas.

Are these values at risk because of socioeconomic problems, violent extremism and a lack of trust in democratic processes?

What is the role of education and training?

What is the role of citizenship education in addressing these challenges?
