

The citizenship education on four competence areas:

Interacting effectively

■ and constructively with others

Thinking critically

■ Acting in a socially responsible manner

Acting democratically

The project aims to introduce the dialectical method in school education as a key feature that promotes the active participation of students in a democratic society with the support of theatre techniques.

The dialectical method is not only promoting the critical thinking of the students but it allows the connection of everyday life with wider concepts and notions such as humanism, justice, freedom etc that are fundamental.

This is extremely important especially for today's society that because of the social media is providing a great quantity of information together with a very limited capacity for the understanding and analysis of the information.

Are these values in risk because of socioeconomic problems, violent extremism and a lack of trust in democratic processes?

What is the role of education and training?

What is the role of citizenship education in addressing these challenges?
